PREFACE

In 1710 Swiss and German Mennonites established settlements on the Pequea Creek in the interior regions of Chester County, Pennsylvania. These early Mennonites, the first settlers in this region, were not alone for very long; French Huguenots established their settlements in the Pequea Valley in 1711. English Quakers soon followed and began to purchase and clear land in the Salisbury Township region, while the Scotch-Irish settled on tracts of land in townships in the far northwest and southern portions of the county. In 1718 several Welsh families migrated to Caernarfon Township.

The influx of these various immigrant groups—Germans, Scotch-Irish, and English—into this region continued through the next decade and was sufficient to warrant the creation of a new county by 1729 which was given the name Lancaster. It was the fourth county established in the province of Pennsylvania.

The early churches of Lancaster County show that while the predominate group was German, the county was rich in ethnic diversity and the county's residents were practicing an array of religious beliefs. The early denominations in the county included: Mennonite, Amish Mennonite, German Baptist Brethern, Quaker, Anglican or Episcopalian, Catholic, Lutheran, German Reformed, Moravian, Presbyterian, Methodist, and Seventh Day Baptist.

This volume, tenth in a series of Pennsylvania Births, has been prepared as an aid for genealogical research in the extant records of those early Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, churches. A variety of sources were used for this compilation, including published works, manuscripts both handwritten and typed, original records and copies of original records found on microfilm. Names and dates for all records were copied verbatim. No attempt was made to correct variant spellings of surnames. Some birth/baptismal records for German congregations were copied from English translations and other translations are my own. In fact, this particular volume includes births found in a previously untranslated register for the Moravian Church at Lititz.

PREFACE

The researcher might further assume that this Anna Maria was a member of the Boeshaar family by birth when, in fact, she is a Boeshaar by marriage—that is, not a Boeshaar blood relative. For proper entry in the main text, her surname at birth would have to be known even though her parents' first names might be unknown. A separate section following the main text lists the married women for whom these kinds of records have been found, but it must be remembered that the linkage for women listed in this section is to the husband, not the parents.

Four additional elements of critical concern to genealogical researchers must be considered:

First, this book is not offered under the pretense of being a "complete" Lancaster County birth record; it is complete only to the extent that records were available for research in 1996. Records are missing, or perhaps were never kept, for some Lancaster County churches. Various county histories, for example, show that ten Presbyterian churches were located in Lancaster County prior to 1800. No extant baptismal records for these ten congregations were found. Likewise, two Catholic congregations were established in Lancaster County, but the only records found were a partial register for St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church in the city of Lancaster. Genealogists must also note that several of the early denominations in Lancaster County, namely the Mennonites, the Amish Mennonites, and the German Baptist Brethern, had no tradition of maintaining church records.

Second, Lancaster County boundaries have changed significantly since the county was established in 1729. Portions of Lancaster County situated west of the Susquehanna River became part of York and Cumberland counties in 1749 and 1750 respectively. Other divisions or separations took place in 1752, 1772, 1785, and 1813 when the counties of Berks, Northumberland, Dauphin, and Lebanon were formed. Researchers must remember that the church, meeting, and pastoral records used for this compilation are those records found within Lancaster County boundaries as they exist in 1996.

Third, the inclusion of birth and/or baptismal information in this compilation does not necessarily mean the infants were born in Lancaster County or that their families even lived there. For example, all of the early births recorded in the St. James Protestant Episcopal Church register were for children born in either York or Cumberland counties, and most of the infants named in the personal register of Rev. Cuthberthson were born and baptized elsewhere.

Fourth, it is important to keep in mind this book is not intended as a substitute source for Lancaster County church, meeting, and pastoral records; rather, it is intended to facilitate access to those records. Family historians who are able to determine that one or several of their ancestors were born in Lancaster County should consult the original record or a transcription of that record to verify information obtained from this text and to gather any additional information.

Finally, I would like to thank the Moravian Church in Lititz for their permission to access information from the early registers of the congregation.
